Description
1) Change the messages below: For error.stockexpirydate: Expiration date of the stock on hand cannot be blank or before XX (Min date) or after XX (Max date) For error.expectedreceive: Expected receiving date cannot be blank or before XX (Min date) or after XX (Max date) 2) Remove the sheet "Current forecasting data". 3) Remove the stock on hand and stock on order part of the parameters sheet of the exported excel, and replace to a new sheet called "Parameters - Stock" (displayed between the parameters and summary tabs) following the same lay-out as in the excel template, but without consistency checking or defined names. 4) Make "Min date" (used for the expiration date's red messages) related to the reference date of the forecasting file that is open. 5) Keep "Max date" calculated as 15 years after the "Min date". 6) Display somewhere in the template the reference date of the file that was open when the template was extracted (for information only). 7) System should allow medicines to be imported when expiration date of the stock on hand, the expected receiving date of the stock on order and the expiration date of the stock on order are equal or after the "Min date" (following the same logic of QuanTB to be consistent). Currently, system does not allow same date as the Min date. 8) Change the label of the error message "Cannot found stock on order. Please, fill in data" to "Your spreadsheet is missing required data. The minimum needed is medicine name(s) and either stock on hand (with dates) or stock on order (with dates). Please correct and try again".
